

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a system and method for printing electronic files. The present invention enables a user to create a plurality of electronic files, specify print setting information for each electronic file, and associate the specified print setting information with each electronic file in a manner adapted for storage. The present invention further enables a user to print a plurality of electronic files in response to a print request, wherein each of the electronic files is printed in accordance with the specified print setting information.